The purpose of the Biblical Studies, Christian Ministries, Intercultural Studies, and Philosophy Department is to provide students with a substantive understanding of the foundation of the Christian faith to enhance any vocation; to prepare students for church, para-church, or cross-cultural ministry; or to prepare students for graduate study. This preparation is two-fold. First, the department provides a significant portion of the “faith” side of the integration of faith and learning by teaching the four foundational core courses required for the entire student body. These four courses (BIB 110, BIB 210, REL 313, and PHI 413) are sequenced with each successive course serving as the prerequisite for the next. These foundational core courses are designed to equip students with enough theological and philosophical substance to be able to integrate biblical truth within their respective disciplines as well as think and live “Christianly” in our post-modern world. These four courses also make up the majority of the Scripture engagement minor for all students. The Scripture engagement minor is designed to inspire, encourage, and equip students to engage Scripture so that they can encounter Christ. Thus, the ultimate goal of the foundational core courses taught within this department is that students know and love God with all their heart and mind (John 17:31; Luke 10:27) and become more Christ-like in thought, speech, and action (Romans 8:29).

Second, the department offers five majors—Biblical Literature, Christian Ministries, Intercultural Studies, Philosophy, and Youth Ministry—to prepare students who will demonstrate competence in biblical, educational, intercultural, and philosophical truth in preparation for graduate studies and lifelong servant-leadership roles in professional Christian ministries. In addition, seven minors are offered in Biblical Languages, Biblical Literature, Christian Ministries, Philosophy, Intercultural Studies, Youth Ministry, and Ethics. These majors and minors are designed to complement other majors, and consequently, students are encouraged to consider adding a second major or a minor from the BSCIP department to enhance their primary program of study.

Students within the department may choose to take advantage of Taylor’s affiliation with Jerusalem University College (JUC) and spend a semester studying in Jerusalem. Men and women anticipating seminary study should also select other electives in their undergraduate course of study that encompass the world of ideas, nature, and human affairs. Other overseas academic trips are offered in January for Foundational Core credit. They include Israel (BIB 110 or 210 equivalencies) and Greece and Italy (BIB 210 equivalency).

Biblical Studies

The Biblical Studies program is designed for students who desire a robust intellectual understanding of the foundation of the Christian faith. In the process of the program, students study biblical texts and explore various approaches to understanding them. Majors and minors in Biblical Literature develop proficiency as informed and observant interpreters of biblical passages as they learn to draw upon theological, historical, linguistic, and literary insights for richer, more complete understandings of texts. Students also grow in their ability to think about, write about, discuss, and apply biblical teachings.

Students who take the Biblical Literature major anticipating graduate study and professional ministry should also take an introductory course in philosophy and logic and be able to read at least one theologically significant foreign language. The primary language is Greek, although Hebrew is also recommended. Students who plan to pursue seminary study should seek the counsel of the department faculty and consult with representatives from their church or ministry network to determine which graduate school(s) would best prepare them for their anticipated career. Early in their senior year, students should correspond with the school(s) to which they intend to apply.

Christian Ministries and Youth Ministry

The purpose of the Christian Ministries program of Taylor University is to provide a foundation for students who are pursuing careers in church, para-church ministry, or graduate school. In addition to the Christian Ministries major and Youth Ministry major, students often pursue one of the following interdisciplinary areas of concentration: youth ministry, missions, children's ministry, disability and exceptionality ministry, orphaned and vulnerable children, ministry leadership, intercultural ministry, urban ministry, camping and recreational ministry, administrative ministry, or worship art. The Christian Ministries program at Taylor University is characterized by a whole-person focus. Courses balance theory and practice as the biblical, theological, historical, philosophical, and educational foundations of ministry are explored. Spiritual formation in the context of a learning community is emphasized. Students learn collaborative thinking, planning, programming, and evaluation strategies while they are encouraged to identify and use their spiritual gifts in ministry. Students are encouraged to study in an off-campus program for at least one semester. Intercultural Studies

The Intercultural Studies (ICS) program is designed for students who seek to engage with God's redemptive mission in the world and reflect critically and productively on intercultural or global service that is integrated with their Christian faith. Students will grasp the theory and practice necessary for effective intercultural service including its biblical, missiological, historical, and anthropological foundations. The program provides students with a robust foundation in the main areas of applied missiology so they will be equipped to formulate and apply positive contribution to God's global purposes in a variety of vocations.

ICS students often pursue careers with a broad range of non-profit agencies and ministries, yet others serve in business, international education, sustainable development, and a variety of other fields. The large number of electives allows students to shape the ICS major toward their individual goals and interests. The ICS program effectively prepares students for graduate school through exposure to key missiological scholarship, primary sources, intercultural competencies, and a capstone service-learning research course. A cross-cultural experience is required to provide valuable real-world intercultural experience.
